

Helapet launch new Website

“Accessing Helapet products just got easier”

Helapet invites visitors to come and explore our fully re-designed website, introducing a new look, new content and new features.

Taking a fresh view in the development of our website, we have kept the user firmly in mind with a decluttered and simplified design, supported by optimised navigation and easy-to-use menu selections. Fully compatible with today’s browsers and mobile technologies, visitors can enjoy full and easy access using any mobile device, from any location. We have also included significantly more content with richer product information and details about our products, reflecting our dedication to quality service and customer support.

As a company Helapet always encourages engagement and close interaction with our customers. This is why visitors can stay informed with product news and company developments, including latest announcements, events and new product introductions. All information on our products can be immediately shared with colleagues online or on social media platforms at the touch of a button. Making our site more user friendly for visitors worldwide, all our web content can be viewed in an array of foreign languages.

It’s never been easier to get in contact or send a sample request. Saving on valuable time, visitors can now acquire free samples from over 80% of our product portfolio from one dedicated webpage. For more detailed discussion, our team of experienced Account Managers are now accessible online with full direct contact available accompanied by a handy profile picture. Simply tap on the phone number or email address and be instantly connected.

Learn more about Helapet, our facilities, capabilities, people and services. Further valuable information about Helapet including over 30 years of history, quality accreditations and additional contract and delivery services are available online. Visitors can now discover our latest job opportunities with a list of current vacancies with information on how to apply. As we continue to introduce new products and services, we ensure our website is continually updated as our main source of company information and news.

We take seriously all feedback and improvement suggestions that can further enhance our customer’s online experience. Complete our website survey today and tell us in your own words what you think.
